

Rome, 9 October 2018

The Rome Center at the University of Arkansas invites applications for a Faculty in International and Global Studies to begin January 7, 2019.

Candidates must have a Ph.D. in a field relevant to international studies by the time of appointment, including but not limited to anthropology, economics, geography, history, international/area studies, and political science.

Preferred candidates will have teaching and research experience related to modern issues of global significance, including but not limited to climate policy, foreign policy, human rights, international peace and conflict studies, international trade or intercultural exchange, migration studies, etc, AND/OR the preferred candidate will have a regional specialty in modern Europe.

The successful candidate will be asked to teach INST 2013 Introduction to International and Global Studies and advanced undergraduate courses related to the candidate's teaching and/or research specialty.

The deadline for applications is November 12, 2018.

Please send a cover letter, curriculum vitae, and list of three professional references to faculty_search@arkrome.it

Questions concerning the search may be directed to Davide Vitali, Director of the University of Arkansas Rome Center: dvitali@uark.edu